THE ADELAIDE HUNT CLUB STEEPLECHASES

Saturday 2nd October 1869 (NLA Trove Newspapers)
 The South Australian Advertiser Wednesday 13 October
 1869 Page 5

The Hunt club has become a great institution, and the chief founders—the Messrs. Blackler—have immortalised themselves among South Australian sportsmen. The races with which the season was wound up on Saturday have been the most successful and interesting of turf events for many years, and of the Steeplechases we may say that take them altogether they have never been equalled in the colony, for the leaping and pace of the horses, and the pluck and skill of the riders. The day was all that could be desired—bright, clear, and with a fresh breeze blowing.

The attendants was immense, and we doubt if it has ever before been so large upon the Thebarton Course.

THE ADELAIDE HUNT CLUB CUP OF 75 SOVEREIGNS

The starting point was about the centre of the Thebarton paddock, the direction being southward. There was an admirable start, the lot going away at terrific speed, that put baulking out of the question. Priam was leading and went first over the fence into a little corn paddock, Launcelot second, the others all in a ruck. Mr. Gordon soon overhauled the Trojan and led over the next jump eastward into the road, across and over again, Priam on his quarter, and Whitefoot third. The whole field followed in splendid style. Launcelot still led away to the fourth jump into a small enclosure, and then sharply round to the fence with the ditch on the landing side, where Blackboy was killed last autumn. Gordon landed safely, however, Monk having pushed up into second place, Whitefoot third, and away they went for the sixth fence in the centre of the Thebarton paddock. During the race to this the fast horses began to make play, and foremost came Mr. Ferry on Gipsy Girl overhauling the Melbourne champion, and showing him the way over the fence; Priam, Unknown, and Monk came together; Whitefoot had fallen back; Mr. Mullins's game little horse had pushed his way up into a prominent position, and the rest were tailed out, but still coming on at their leaps, Round again they went to the paddocks, Gipsy Girl leading; Lightfoot had taken the second position; Launcelot was third; then came the ruck, changing positions among themselves, and the stragglers brought up the rear greeted the winner as he rode into the weighing box.

Again they crossed the Hilton-road without a check; the next fence was got over, and wheeling round, they faced for the second time poor Blackboy's last leap, where the lovers of the sensational had gathered in great numbers in expectation of a catastrophe. Gipsy girl led the way like a bird, but there had been a change of places among the horses close after her; Launcelot had been worked up into second place; Henderson brought Unknown to the fence third, Malcolm came over fourth, and Fisher landed Monk safely fifth. There was a good stretch along the east side of the Thebarton Course to the 12th jump, and it again became a question of pace, Lightfoot again taking second position, Launcelot next, Priam and Unknown near together, Monk next, and the rest following. The thirteenth leap was safely cleared, but the next being a stiff one, and the speed awful, accidents were expected, and they came. Ferry, Mullins, Malcolm, and Gordon, went over flying, but Unknown fell, and Monk coming up just after him baulked. Fisher, however, put him at it again, and he cleared it Whitefoot and Tophorn came to grief at the same place. Unknown galloped in riderless by the side of Priam. The other two unfortunates were remounted and ridden in. The race was decided at this fence, as there was only the slight hurdle in front of the Stand, and the leaders came at full speed and passed the post in the following order:—Gipsy Girl, Lightfoot, Priam, Launcelot, the rest all coming round before long without a check, except those we have mentioned. Time, 8 minutes 7 seconds. Tremendous cheers.

 At right is the rebuilt 1903 Eagle Tavern, now a McDonald's food outlet. Photo taken in 1926 just prior to demolition of Hunt's Labour Exchange which was a stable, at the time of Adam Lindsay Gordon.
 Erected in the 'roaring forties', these three small shops in Bank Street were the principal stables of old Adelaide, and were a popular meeting ground. Adam Lindsay Gordon stabled his horses here, and derived inspiration from chance meetings for many of his stirring poems. Mr Mullins' horse, Lightfoot, was also kept here.

THE BOXING PARLIAMENTARIAN

A recollection by Mr. Jackson, a son of the late Mr. T. Jackson, who was one of the chief sporting identities of Adelaide in the 1850's an 60's, and who had a well-known hair dressing and tobacconist's establishment in Rundle street, and was also the first photographer in the State.

(This incident is also recollected by a racing friend of Gordon, Mr. E.J.Locke as happening whilst Gordon was in Parliament) Just about the time that the poet was a member of Parliament he rode up to Mr. Jackson, senior's, shop, and said that he had heard that there was somebody nearby to Adelaide who could use his fists, and that he would be delighted if Mr. Jackson could arrange a private contest.

This was quickly fixed up, in no professional way, for they were both amateurs, and met as such. The person selected for the match was George Cox, of Norwood, who was a bricklayer and when A. L. Gordon and Mr. Jackson. sen. drove to his home he was in his smock.

The principals quickly got to work, and Gordon soon remarked, "Cox, if you are any good at all go your hardest. I am quite prepared for anything, and I do not want child's play.

"Without any more ado Cox upper-cut his opponent, and Gordon was laid flat. When he got up again he declared. "I thought there was no man living at the present time who could do that to me."

Was it wise or well that I hated you
 For the fruit that hung too high on the tree?
 For the blossom out of our reach that grew
 Was it well or wise that you hated me?—
 My hate has flown and your hate shall flee.
 Let us veil our faces like children chid—
 Can that violet orb we swore by see
 Through that violet-vein'd, transparent lid?—
 Now the Lord forbid that this strife should be.

Let us thank the Lord for His bounties all,
 For the brave old days of pleasure and pain,
 When the world for both of us seem'd too small—
 Though the love was void and the hate was vain—
 Though the word was bitter between us twain,
 And the bitter word was kin to the blow,
 For her gloss and ripple of rich gold rain,
 For her velvet crimson and satin snow—
 Though we never shall know the old days again.
